The “Regulate everything” approach

Data Hoarding

“Digital hoarding (also known as e-hoarding, e-clutter, datahoarding, digital pack-rattery or cyberhoarding) is defined by researchers as an emerging sub-type of hoarding disorder characterized by individuals collecting excessive digital material which lead to those individuals experiencing stress and disorganization”

A woman with blonde hair, wearing a red knit sweater and sunglasses, is smiling and looking at her smartphone. She has white earbuds in her ears. The background is a blurred red wall. There are two vertical red bars on the left side of the image.
